DAS110 : Fundamentals of Dental Assisting

This course presents the foundational principles of the dental assisting profession, the science of dentistry, and an introduction to dental communications. The course includes the roles and functions of the dental team, and laws affecting ethics and the practice of dentistry. Students will gain a working vocabulary that includes terminology related to oral, dental, and head and neck anatomy. Students will be introduced to dental office communication and business operating systems.

Credits	4
Clock Hours	60
Lab Hours	40
Lecture Hours	20
Prerequisites	None