
AHP215 : Anatomy and Physiology

In this course students will learn about the structure and function of the human body. Students will develop knowledge about the levels of organization, cells, and tissues. This course also includes instruction in the following systems: digestive, musculoskeletal, respiratory, cardiovascular, reproductive, urinary, endocrine, gastrointestinal, Integumentary, lymphatic, sensory, and nervous systems.

Credits	6
Clock Hours	80
Lab Hours	40
Lecture Hours	40
Prerequisites	None